NOTE TO GERMANY EMPHATIC STAND FOR AMERICAN RIGHTS

More Wanton Killing of Americans by Submarines Will Be Regarded as "Deliberately Unfriendly."

WILL UPHOLD THE FREEDOM OF SEAS "AT ANY COST"

Last Warning Spoken—German Suggestion for Safe Travel Is Rejected—U. S. Declines to Discuss Actions of Great Britain
With German Government.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—With the publication today of the note warning Germany that any repetition of acts by her submarine commanders in violation of American rights would be regarded as "deliberately unfriendly," the United States Government awaited further developments.

The note does not necessarily call for a reply. It leaves the way open, however, for an answer from Germany disavowing the sinking of the Lusitania and offering reparation, submitting assurances as to the future actions of her naval officers and, even, asking directly for mediation by the United States between the German and British Governments on the general subject of warfare on sea.

The use in the note of the phrase "deliberately unfriendly" is viewed here as expressing the final word of the United States Government regarding Germany's submarine warfare. The United States does not abate in any respect, but rather more strongly insists upon the demands made in previous notes that Germany acquiesce in its view that the rules of international law and humanity be obeyed in her naval warfare.

The United States Government cannot believe, the note says, that "the Imperial Government will longer refrain from disavowing the wanton acts of its naval commander in sinking the Lusitania," and making reparation for the lives of Americans lost in that disaster.

Future Course of the United States.

It announces that the Government will continue to contend for the freedom of the seas "from whatever quarter violated, without compromise and at any cost."

The United States invites the practical co-operation of the German Government in an effort to bring about the freedom of the seas, declares that the American Government cannot discuss actions of Great Britain except with that Government itself, and that it regards as "irrelevant" in the present negotiations the conduct of other belligerents, points out that recent events have clearly indicated that it is "possible and practicable to conduct submarine warfare," "in substantial accord with the accepted practices of regulated warfare," and rejects Germany's proposal "that certain vessels be designated and agreed upon which shall be free on the seas now illegally prescribed."

The note is now in the hands of the German Government and no reply is expected for several weeks. President Wilson and Secretary Lansing had left Washington today.

In official and diplomatic quarters the communications to Berlin was received as the strongest and most emphatic pronouncement that has come from the Washington Government since the beginning of its correspondence with the belligerents of Europe.

The full text of the note will be found on Page 3 of this edition.

Pawlar Star of Peace Also Torpedoed and Sunk; Crews of Both Vessels Drowned.
LONDON, July 24.—The Russian ship Pawlar Star has been torpedoed and sunk by a submarine. Her crew of 30 was landed on the Orkney Islands. The Pawlar Star of Peace also was torpedoed and sunk off the Orkneys. The crew was landed at Stromness.

HOSPITAL PATIENT LEAPS FROM BOAT INTO LAKE AND DROWNS

MACON, Mo., July 24.—Robert Washington of West Point, Miss., a patient at the osteopathic hospital for the treatment of nervous troubles on the old Bliss Military Academy grounds, was drowned in the lake near the main hospital building yesterday afternoon.

Washington, while a patient at the hospital, was not considered in a serious condition. He was permitted to go boating with his father and mother. Hospital authorities said that he jumped from the boat before his parents could restrain him.

His body was recovered several hours later by Harry M. Rubey, president of the Rubey Trust Co., who dragged the lake and made many dives before he located it.

POLICE INQUIRY IN DEATH OF WOMAN AFTER AUTO RIDE

Received Heavy Blow on Jaw and Companions Say Tongue of Wagon Hit Her.

A police investigation was started today after Mrs. Mazie Misgrove of 2110 Olive street was choked to death by her own teeth at the city hospital as a result of an injury received while automobile riding with another woman and three men at 4 o'clock this morning.

The woman had been struck a heavy blow on the jaw. This knocked out several of her teeth. One or more of the teeth lodged in her throat and before they could be removed she died of strangulation.

Patrolman Heiman was standing at Grand avenue and Morgan street about 4:15 a. m., when an automobile pulled up to the curb. The driver of the machine said he was Emmett Christman of 5815A Theodosia avenue. He told the policeman a woman in the machine was badly hurt. The policeman got into the machine and found the woman in the back seat with a cut on her jaw. She said she was Marie Hall of 2727 Washington avenue.

The others in the machine gave their names as Nellie Harris, 3801 Olive street; George Nieberer, 3811 Wisconsin avenue; and Harry H. Alley of 3821 Olive street. The injured woman was taken to the hospital in the automobile and the others were taken to Dayton street station. There Niemans reported the woman had a cut which did not seem serious and after being questioned the other occupants of the car were released.

They told the police the automobile was running east on Lindell boulevard at Euclid avenue when the tongue of a produce wagon going north on Euclid avenue struck the Hall woman. The driver of the wagon, they said, fled after the accident.

Nellie Harris told the police the injured woman's real name was Marie Edwards and that she lived with her at 2801 Olive street. A policeman sent to 2727 Washington avenue, the address given by the injured woman, reported that no one named Marie Hall, or Marie Edwards, was known there. Policemen later identified the woman as Mrs. Misgrove.

After the woman's death, Capt. Hess of the Newstead Avenue District ordered a rigid investigation and sent policemen out to find those who were in the automobile, with a view to summoning them as inquest witnesses.

Men and Women Who Were Rescued Describe
How Few of Picnickers Caught and Held to Side of Boat While Scores of Others
Were Thrown Into Water as Vessel First
Listed and Then Rolled Onto Its Side

CHICAGO, July 24.

L. D. Gadroy, employed as a "candy butcher" on the steamer, was the first eyewitness to tell a detailed story of the accident.

"It was about 7:40 o'clock this morning and the boat was lying at the dock near the Clark street bridge loading with passengers," said Gadroy. "We were to leave in 20 minutes and the upper deck and cabins were crowded with passengers. There were hundreds of women and children. I estimate that there were between 2000 and 3000 persons on the boat at the time of the accident. I was standing on the lower deck near the gang plank watching the people come aboard."

"Suddenly I noticed the boat list toward the center of the river. It rolled slightly at first and then seemed to stop. Then it started to roll again. I became alarmed and shouted to the crowd to keep still. Apparently a majority of the passengers were one side of the boat and this had overweighed it and caused it to list. Suddenly the hawes which held the boat to the dock snapped and the officers pulled the gang plank in and refused to allow any more on the boat."

Everybody Panic-Stricken.

"At this time everybody was panic-stricken. Women screamed and men tried to quiet them. I attempted to reach an upper deck but could not because of the crowd and excitement and ran back to the port, where the gangway had been. The boat then slowly drifted after from the dock, rolling as it slipped into mid-stream and a moment later it had turned over on its side."

"I climbed over on the side of the boat and stayed there until I was taken off by life savers. Many of the passengers leaped into the water as the boat went over. Scores of others were caught in the cabins and drowned. When the small boats began coming out to us I worked with other survivors in taking passengers out of the water and cutting holes in the cabins to remove bodies."

Mrs. Paulina Vantak, the mother of three children, was among the drowned. Her children were believed to have been lost.

Henry Vantak, the woman's husband, was pulled out of the water. "I could not believe the boat was turning over," Vantak said. "About a dozen of the 150 persons on the upper decks jumped. The rest were thrown into the river."

"I did not see my wife or children after the boat turned. They were carried into the river with the crowd. Someone grabbed me around the neck and kept pulling me. It was a woman but I could not save her."

Policeman Henry Seshier, one of the first to go to the rescue, gave a vivid description of the accident. "I saw scores of men and women, many of them holding children, plunge into the water. I jumped into a row boat and pulled out to the drowning. I think I got about 50 ashore. The fire boat and tug hurried to the scene and picked up more than a hundred people."

"We grabbed those nearest us first. At one time I had four women in

7000 Employees of Electrical Company Had Been Given Tickets for Day's Outing on Five Steamers—Eastland First to Be Loaded—Captain and First
Mate Arrested.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Probably 1200 persons and possibly more were drowned today when the steamer Eastland, crowded with 2500 employees of the Western Electric Co., capsized in the Chicago River. Four hours after the accident rescuers were still taking bodies from the boat through holes chopped in its hull and estimates of the death list ran from 700 to 1500.

At 2 o'clock 697 bodies had been recovered.

A coroner said 60 per cent of the dead were women.

Deputy Coroner David Jones and Sheriff John E. Traeger of Cook County, who are directing the work of removing bodies from the hull of the Eastland, stated that from reports of bodies still in the hull of the boat they feared the death list would reach 1200 and might reach 1500. First Deputy Superintendent of Police Schuettler said he believed 1000 persons had perished. His estimate was based on information obtained from a purser who escaped.

Captain and Mate Arrested.

The crowding of passengers to one side of the boat is supposed to have caused the tragedy, but authorities, not satisfied with this explanation, ordered the arrest of officers of the boat and Capt. Harry Pedersen and Dell Fisher, first mate, were taken to police headquarters.

Federal Judge K. M. Landis ordered a special grand jury empaneled to make an investigation of the disaster. The jury will meet next Thursday.

Steamboat Inspector William Nicholas is investigating a report that water ballast was pumped from the hold of the Eastland as the passengers boarded it so that the boat would rise and that more passengers might be carried.

One theory of the cause of the accident is that the steamer had stuck in the mud and had failed to free herself when the engines were started, causing the outer side of the steamer to list.

Panic struck the passengers when the boat began to turn over. Best accounts of witnesses said the steamer rolled slightly twice, then turned further and that hundreds of screaming, struggling men, women and children slid across the sloping decks, fought for room and clutched at companions, deck chairs or any other object that came to hand. The steamer floated on its side into midstream, where motor boats and other river crafts swarmed about it.

Women and Children in Cabin.

The merchants of the South Water Street commission houses and their employees made many rescues. Chicken coops and bales were thrown into the river to the floating victims. Many saved themselves in this manner. Other merchants, with the aid of ropes and poles, pulled dozens from the stream.

Women and children by the hundreds were caught below decks and the scratched faces, torn clothing and bruised bodies of the dead bore mute evidence of the desperation with which they had fought for life.

Apparently scores of women and children in the cabin were drowned without being given a chance to escape. Hundreds of other passengers were able to climb to the side of the boat above water, and were taken off by rescuers.

Life preservers were cast into the river from the steamship Theodore Roosevelt, which was docked across the river, and scores of the Eastland's passengers clung to them until picked up by boats. Acetylene blow pipes were rushed to the boat and the task

GERMAN OFFICIALS 'THINKING IT OVER,' VON WIEGAND SAYS

Post-Dispatch Man Finds Those Close to the Government Unwilling to Express View on President's Note or Their Country's Attitude or Course.

GENERAL CONFIDENCE DISPLAYED IN BERLIN

Count Reventlow Writes That There Can Be No Change in Submarine Warfare—Note to Be Published Today or Tomorrow.

By Karl H. Von Wiegand, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

BERLIN, July 23, via The Hague, July 24.—The Government is "thinking it over."

This is the only information I could get tonight when I attempted to sound persons close to the Government as to the impression made by President Wilson's new note, which was delivered to Herron-Jasow, a few minutes after 1 o'clock today, by Ambassador Gerard.

There was no disposition among those who had read the note to express an opinion so early as to Germany's probable course or attitude toward the note, or to give me even an intimation as to whether the impression was favorable or unfavorable.

It was explained that there had not been time yet for a thorough consideration of the note by the heads of the various departments, much less time to confer on or discuss the note. However, the anxiety or nervousness was observable among those who had read America's latest document.

The note has not yet been made public, and comparatively few persons had seen it late this afternoon. The evening papers feature a dispatch from the Washington correspondent of the London Morning Post, whose cablegrams generally are regarded here as the most reliable of American dispatches to London, because of their apparent fairness and more correct forecasts in the past. The dispatch says the note is friendly and contains no ultimatum or threat. It is expected that the note will be published Saturday or Sunday.

GERMANY NOT TO CHANGE ATTITUDE, REVENTLOW SAYS

No Matter What Note Contains, Submarine Campaign Will Continue, He Declares.

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, via London, July 24.—The American note was not published in this morning's Berlin papers, but probably will appear in the afternoon editions. Count Ernst von Reventlow, in an article in the Tages Zeitung headed "Ungrounded Anxieties," declares that, no matter what the note contains, the submarine campaign will not be restricted. So far as the German empire is concerned, he says, there will be no further question of its attitude. Germany's stand has been taken. Count von Reventlow asserts, and it will be maintained.

The total answerer says the contents of the American note do not preclude the possibility of further negotiations between Washington and Berlin.

Mrs. Belahr threatened to take acid. Her husband went out and when he returned, half an hour later, his wife had taken poison.

Belahr told the police he thought his wife was joking when she threatened to kill herself.

Text of Latest German Note Which the President Calls "Very Unsatisfactory"

(As transmitted to the American Government July 9.)

THE undersigned has the honor to make the following reply to his Excellency, Ambassador Gerard, to the note of the 10th ultimo, re, the imprisonment of American interest by the German submarine war.

The Imperial Government learned with satisfaction from the note how earnestly the Government of the United States is concerned in seeing the principles of humanity realized in the present war.

Also this appeal finds ready echo in Germany and the Imperial Government is quite willing to permit its statements and decisions in the present case to be governed by the principles of humanity just as it has done always.

The Imperial Government welcomed with gratitude when the American Government in the note of May 15th recalled that Germany had always permitted itself to be governed by the principles of progress and humanity in dealing with the law of maritime war.

Since the time when Frederick the Great negotiated with John Adams, Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson the Treaty of Friendship and Commerce of Sept. 9, 1783, between Prussia and the Republic of the West, Germany and American statesmen have, in fact, always stood together in the struggle for the freedom of the seas and for the protection of peaceful trade.

In the international proceedings which since have been conducted for the regulation of the laws of maritime war, Germany and America have jointly advocated progressive principles, especially the abolition of the right of capture at sea and the protection of the interests of neutrals.

Protection for Enemy Civilians. Even at the beginning of the present war the German Government immediately declared its willingness, in response to proposals of the American Government, to ratify the Declaration of London and thereby subject itself to the use of its naval forces to all the restrictions provided therein in favor of neutrals. Germany likewise has been always tenacious of the principle that war should be conducted against the armed and organized forces of an enemy country, but that the enemy civilian population must be spared as far as possible from the measures of war.

The Imperial Government cherishes the definite hope that some way will be found when peace is concluded, or perhaps earlier, to regulate the law of maritime war in a manner guaranteeing the freedom of the seas and will welcome it with gratitude and satisfaction if it can work hand in hand with the American Government on that occasion.

If in the present war the principles which should be the ideal of the future have been traversed more and more, the longer its duration, the German Government has no guilt therein. It is known Germany's adversaries, by completely paralyzing peaceful traffic between Germany and neutral countries, have aimed from the very beginning and with increasing lack of consideration for the German population in doing so all the rules of international law and disregarding all the rights of neutrals.

British War Area Declaration. On Nov. 3, 1914, England declared the North Sea a war area and by planting poorly anchored mines, and by the stoppage and capture of vessels, made passage extremely dangerous and difficult for neutral shipping, so by that actually blockading neutral coasts and ports contrary to all international law.

Let before the beginning of the submarine war England practically completely intercepted legitimate neutral navigation to Germany also. Thus Germany was driven to a submarine war on trade.

On Nov. 14, 1914, the English Premier declared in the House of Commons that it was one of England's principal tasks to prevent food for the German population from reaching Germany via neutral ports.

Since March 1 England has been taking from neutral ships, without further formality, all merchandise proceeding Germany, and, well as all merchandise coming from Germany, even when neutral property. Just as it was also with the Boers, the German people are now to be given the choice of perishing from starvation with the women and children or of relinquishing its independence.

While our enemies thus loudly and openly proclaimed war without mercy, all our utter destruction, we were conducting a war in self-defense for our national existence and for the sake of peace of an assured permanency. We have been obliged to adopt the most drastic measures to meet the declared intentions of our enemies and the method of warfare adopted by them in contravention of international law.

German Fighting for Existence. With all its efforts in principle to protect neutral life and property from damage as much as possible, the German Government recognized unreservedly in its memorandum of Feb. 4 that the interests of neutrals might suffer from the submarine warfare.

However, the American Government will also understand and appreciate that in the fight for existence which has been forced upon Germany by its adversaries and announced by them, it is the sacred duty of the Imperial Government to do all within its power to protect and save the lives of German subjects.

If the Imperial Government were derelict in these, its duties, it would be guilty before God and history of the violation of those principles of highest humanity which are the foundation of every national existence.

The case of the Lusitania shows with horrible clearness to what jeopardizing of human lives the manner of conducting war employed by adversaries leads.

In the most direct contradictions of international law, all distinctions between merchant and war vessels have been obliterated by the order to British merchantmen to arm themselves and to ram submarines, and the promise of rewards therefor, and neutrals who use merchantmen as travelers thereby have been exposed to an increasing degree to all the dangers of war.

No Danger to Legitimate Shipping. If the commander of the German submarine which destroyed the Lusitania had caused the crew and passengers to take to the boats before firing a torpedo, this would have meant the sure destruction of his own vessel. After the experiences in sinking much smaller and less seaworthy vessels, it was to be expected that a mighty ship like the Lusitania would remain above water long enough even after the torpedoing to permit passengers to enter the ship's boats.

Circumstances of a very peculiar kind, especially the presence on board of large quantities of highly explosive materials, defeated this expectation. In addition, it may be pointed out that if the Lusitania had been spared thousands of cases of munitions would have been sent to Germany's enemies, and thereby thousands of German mothers and children robbed of breadwinners.

In the spirit of friendship where-with the German nation has been imbued towards the Union and its inhabitants since the earliest days of its existence, the Imperial Government hereby declares that it is ready to do all it can during the present war also to prevent the jeopardizing of lives of American citizens.

The Imperial Government, therefore, repeats the assurances that American ships will not be hindered in the prosecution of legitimate shipping, and the lives of American citizens in neutral vessels shall not be placed in jeopardy.

Proposal as to American Ships. In order to exclude any unforeseen dangers to American passenger steamers, made possible in view of the conduct of maritime war by Germany's adversaries, German submarines will be instructed to permit the free and safe passage of such passenger steamers when made recognizable by special markings and notified a reasonable time in advance.

The Imperial Government, however, confidently hopes that the American Government will assume to guarantee that these vessels have no contraband on board, details of arrangements for the unimpeded passage of these vessels to be agreed upon by the naval authorities of both sides.

In order to furnish adequate facilities for travel across the Atlantic for American citizens, the German Government submits for consideration a proposal to increase the number of available steamers by installing in passenger service a reasonable number of neutral steamers under the American flag, the exact number to be agreed upon under the same condition as the above-mentioned American steamers.

The Imperial Government believes it can assure that in this manner adequate facilities for travel across the Atlantic Ocean can be afforded American citizens. There would therefore appear to be no compelling necessity for American citizens to travel to Europe in time of war on ships carrying an enemy flag. In particular, the Imperial Government is unable to admit that American citizens can protect an enemy ship through the mere fact of their presence on board.

Germany merely followed England's example when she declared that of American citizens suffered by neutrals on enemy ships in this area of war cannot be judged differently from accidents to which neutrals are at all times exposed at the seat of war on land when they betake themselves into dangerous localities.

Further Offer of Immunity. If, however, it should not be possible for the American Government to acquire an adequate number of neutral passenger steamers, the Imperial Government is prepared to interpose no objections to the placing under the American flag by the American Government of four enemy passenger steamers for passenger traffic between North America and England.

Assurance of "free and safe" passages for American passenger steamers would extend to apply under the identical conditions to these former hostile passenger steamers.

The President of the United States has

RANGER ESCAPES FROM KIDNAPER, WHO IS CAUGHT

Gets Away While Abductor Sleeps and Soon Afterward Cowboy Posse Make Capture.

By Associated Press.

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho, July 24.—The $2000 ransom demanded for the safe return of Ernest A. Empey, wealthy rancher, who with his son, was kidnapped from his ranch Tuesday, will not be paid. Empey today is in safe hands in Montpelier and his abductor is under arrest.

Lon Dean, a sheep herder, who, authorities say, admits he kidnapped E. A. Empey, was lodged in the Bonneville County Jail early today by cowboys after a hard ride to save their captive from would-be lynchers. Dean was captured on Sheep Mountain last night, after Empey had escaped.

Dean, a slightly-built man, 5 feet 4 inches in height, explained his crime by saying: "I took this means of getting money, as I thought I could do more good with it than those who had it."

Asked regarding the anxiety he had caused the family of his wealthy captive, he said he "hadn't thought of that."

He claims Salem, Utah, as his home. Empey arrived late yesterday at a lumber camp in the woods near Montpelier. He told of having escaped while his captor slept. Soon afterwards a posse of cowboys reported the capture of the abductor, whose location was given by Empey.

The boy was returned with a demand for $2000 ransom, which was to be left in the road at a command from the mountaineers. The money which was being taken to the spot by a messenger was to have been delivered today.

LONDON, July 24.—A dispatch to Reuters' Telegram Co. from Berlin, received by way of Amsterdam, says:

"The Federal Council has decided to establish an imperial foodstuff commission to safeguard and to distribute home-grown foodstuffs. The council also has decided to issue a proclamation directed against the exorbitant increase in the price of articles of daily consumption, including luxuries. The possibility of expropriation is pointed out where such articles are held back."

PASTOR HELD FOR MAN'S DEATH

Charged With Killing Which Dates Back 45 Years.

COVINGTON, Ky., July 24.—The Rev. W. H. McCard is in jail here charged with killing Monroe Smith near Covington more than 45 years ago.

Smith, it is alleged, struck McCard's mother and was killed a few days later. McCard left her shortly afterwards and went west, where he became a minister. He came here on a visit to relations and his arrest followed.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR

"If a man does not provide for his children, if he does not provide for all those dependent upon him, and if he has not the vision of conditions to come, and that care for the days that have not yet dawned, which we sum up in the whole idea of thrift and saving, then he has not opened his eyes to any adequate conception of human life."

We are in this world not to provide for ourselves but for others, and that is the basis of economy."

COTTON PURCHASE SCHEME URGED AGAIN IN LONDON

Times and Mail Insist That the Staple Must Be Declared Contraband by the British Government.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, July 24.—The Times and the Daily Mail urge again today that the Government declare cotton contraband, and undertake the scheme for the purchase of the textile as outlined in the Times yesterday. This plan contemplates the purchase by the Government from the Southern Cotton Exchange of the amount of cotton that would normally go to Germany and Austria-Hungary, and also of the cotton exports to Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland, at the same time declaring cotton absolute contraband.

In another article dealing with the despatch of the Government in placing restrictions upon the shipment of cotton yarns to neutral countries, the Times says: "Rightly or wrongly, the Government believes cloth suitable for aircraft has been getting through to Germany, and undoubtedly a determined effort is now being made to stop the entry of any materials that are likely to assist the enemy."

"Becoming Grave Danger."

The Daily Graphic also complains of the inaction of the Government in this matter, and says the matter is becoming a grave danger to the country, as, unless something is done before the new cotton crop is available, Germany will be able to get all the cotton she requires.

The Daily Mail, in an editorial, says: "It will be a gross public scandal if this matter is not dealt with, before Parliament rises, to save our soldiers."

Replying to newspapers and publicists who are demanding that cotton shall be made absolute contraband regardless of the effect of such action on neutral nations, the Weekly Nation says:

"Some such similar action united against us in active warfare or armed neutrality the whole civilized world a hundred years ago, even in the end dragging us into a dreary fight with the United States."

The Nation points out that Great Britain protested against cotton being declared contraband during the Russo-Japanese War and that in the declaration of London the British representatives insisted upon having cotton placed on the free list.

The Nation considers, however, that, if Germany diverted all cotton supplies for the manufacture of munitions of war, a new situation would have arisen, and the declaration of cotton as absolute contraband could be justified before the world, but even then the treatment of cotton destined for neutral states would remain to be considered, and the Nation advises critics to leave the decision to the Foreign Office, which has all the facts.

GERMAN DECLARES GERARD TO ASK FOR ENGLISH WANTED GERMAN VERSION OF LUSITANIA SUNK OF ORDNA ATTACK

Naval Professor Asserts Admiralty Court Disasters to Gain American Outburst.

LONDON, July 24.—The correspondent of the Daily News in Rotterdam forwards a dispatch quoting yesterday's Vossische Zeitung, in which Oswald Flamm, Privy Councillor and a professor of naval construction, makes the assertion that Capt. Turner and the British Admiralty not only exposed the Lusitania to submarine attack but accelerated the sinking of the ship by artificial means in order to drown Americans and to obtain an American outburst against Germany.

Prof. Flamm says: "To insure the success of the attack the ship left New York on scheduled time, took the customary route, arrived in England waters at scheduled time, entered the danger zone in broad daylight, and at a reduced speed. Despite wireless appeals for help the Admiralty sent no assistance to the ship, which was torpedoed according to the plans, and sank with a large number of Americans. It was then up to America to take the next step."

"The second explanation, granting that there had been no ammunition on board, could only be the result of an artificial cause with intentional design to sink the ship and executed by some bribed person on board. The fact that the lifeboats were hung out in readiness preserved the appearance of careful management. As the investigation was behind closed doors, the public must remain ignorant of the real facts until later developments."

As receiver of the National Bank of the State of Missouri, Johnston assisted in the financial arrangements required to complete the Eads Bridge in the early 70s. Soon afterward he went to New York.

He died yesterday at his home in Garden City, L. I., after a long illness of a complication of diseases.

The June ice bill of the Free Ice and Diet Circle of King's Daughters, who search out and provide that essential to the health of poor and ailing babies and settle the account through the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, amounted to $73.22. It has been paid. The July statement no doubt will be materially heavier, owing to the increase in the number of babies requiring ice because of the heat.

Then there is the item of pure milk to be taken care of, both of these for at least four months. That is a convincing fact in the situation, showing that the army undertaking to supply these needs for saving the lives of the infants upon whom the future of the community rests in part, has much yet to accomplish.

But the Fund is growing splendidly, and with it the enthusiasm that overcomes every element making otherwise for failure. The boys and girls blessed with immunity from conditions such as imperil the lives of infants in the overcrowded districts of the city are making a whole-summer campaign of it.

The more they accomplish in the way of raising money at initial efforts the greater their determination to more than duplicate it before the summer is ended. Several groups of children already have engaged in a carnival, benefit entertainments or enterprises.

Mayor at Benefit Tonight.
Misses Marie Grossman, Lillian Josephson and Frances Feldman, all young girls, expect to materially enrich the fund through a carnival this evening at 4421 Page boulevard. Quite an array of features has been arranged for the event. Mayor Kiel has been invited. The Mayor is relied upon to contribute largely to the success of the evening.

Eleven little misses, organized as the Merry-making Girls' Club, are devoting three afternoons each week to rehearsing and otherwise perfecting arrangements for a play and miscellaneous entertainment which they are to give on the evening of Aug. 12 at the Jewish Educational Alliance, 301 Carr street. They have gone about the work with intelligent system and determined purpose to make it productive of genuine satisfaction to themselves, their friends who aid them and those who rejoice to see the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund grow into proportions promising relief for every baby in the city needing it.

East St. Louis Children Aid.
Interest in the well-being of the needy babies of St. Louis is not confined to the city. More than one contribution has this season come from miles or less remote points, extending to Texas and Arkansas, the latter being from grown people. In yesterday's acknowledgements was one of $1.10 from East St. Louis. It came from three tiny girls, who earned it through an entertainment given by them at 425 North Twenty-sixth street, the home of two of them, Mildred and Rosalie Neunthner. They were assisted by Mamie Wilt of 413 North Twenty-sixth street, and the affair was pronounced very happily conceived and delightfully carried through.

Little Misses Roberta Goodenow and Margaret McIntyre united in a fund benefit at 836 Julian avenue, the result being $1.60. They employed a microscope for a post-card picture show, which those witnessing it enjoyed to the utmost.

Virginia Myer, 19 years old, of 430 West Pine boulevard, chose to extend direct personal aid to the poor babies and contributed $1.

Carnival Yields $50.
Thirteen girls and one boy held a carnival for the benefit of the Pure Milk Fund at the home of Mrs. J. P. Hickey, 1344 Union boulevard, Wednesday evening, and earned $50. Only a week before the date of the affair these little people under-benevolent impulse, conceived the idea of a carnival and at once set about the task of developing it.

About the lawn were arranged many Japanese lanterns of varied colors. In the midst of these were eight booths from which various articles were sold. These booths were decorated with red, white and blue bunting artistically draped about them.

During the week prior to the carnival the children busied themselves selling tickets, each of which entitled the purchaser to a 6-cent article at the carnival. Ice cream, soda water, lemonade, candy, fruit and many other articles were disposed of during the evening.

In addition to the merchandise feature the young folks organized a dance indoors for those of more mature age who desired that form of entertainment. Ten cents a couple was charged for the privilege and this feature of the benefit proved quite lucrative.

The children who arranged the carnival went into the task fired with an ambition to earn at least $50 for the fund, and feel very grateful to the people of the neighborhood for their hearty co-operation.

Those who were in the entertainment are Helen and Louise Moberly, 1350 Minerva avenue; Alice, Helen and Vincent Hickey, 1544 Union boulevard; Ruth Mueller, 1340 Union; Estelle Bornmueller, 1338 Union; Eleanor Heaper, 5248 Minerva avenue; Mabel Evans, 5259 Minerva; Julia Kern, 1347 Union; Mary Joyce, 5299 Minerva avenue; Mildred Sheehan, 5864A Page boulevard; Marietta Bickero, 1372 Blackstone avenue and John Brosa, 1344 Union boulevard.

Little Florence Vogler, 2274 Indiana avenue, through the disposition of a beautiful picture of fruit, earned $1.52 for the fund. This being the first time she has been active in the cause of the poor babies.

FARMER BROTHERS OF ILLINOIS FIND THEIR CHILDREN HERE

Wives of the Men Left Their Homes July 10 and Are Said to Be in St. Louis.

Detectives found yesterday the four children of Oscar Seawalt and his brother, Lester, Naples (Ill.) farmers whose wives disappeared, July 10, taking the children with them.

Oscar Seawalt's children were found at 12 North Eleventh street, the home of Mrs. Bertha Petri, a sister of Mrs. Seawalt. Lester's children were found at a rooming house at 1125½ Chestnut street.

The mothers brought the children here and are said to be in St. Louis, but neither was at either house when the detectives called. The children were turned over to their fathers, who took them back to Naples.

Fochtler, whose commission was signed by President Wilson yesterday, has been detached from duty at the Naval War College to relieve Rear Admiral Clifford Boush as commander of the second division of the Atlantic fleet. ## MISSING FIREMAN WROTE HE WOULD JUMP IN RIVER

Wife of W. H. Smith Says He Worried Over Debts and Feared for His Position.

Walter H. Smith of 6801 Cote Brillante avenue, a probationary fireman of Engine Company No. 24, has not been at his home or at the engine company's headquarters, at Twelfth and Spruce streets, since Thursday.

A few hours after Smith departed from home, ostensibly to go to work, his wife received a special delivery letter signed with his name, telling her he meant to jump in the river. The letter asked Mrs. Smith never to tell their only child, Mary Alene, 2 years old, that her father had killed himself.

Mrs. Smith today refused to make known the full contents of the letter. One sentence read: "I will have jumped in the Mississippi River when you receive this."

Worried by Bill Collectors.
Persistence of creditors in collecting bills from him and a fear that he had not successfully passed an examination before the newly created Efficiency Board, are given by Mrs. Smith as reasons why her husband had been greatly worried in the last few weeks.

Smith was appointed a probationary fireman last January at a salary of $30 a month. Under the old charter his salary would have been increased to $90 a month in June, without further examination or efficiency tests. The new charter provided that probationaries must stand a rigid efficiency examination before their appointments could be made permanent.

Recently Smith took this examination, involving physical and mental tests. According to his wife he worried a lot to his percentage in the examination and feared he would not be retained in the department. Names of the probationaries who passed the examination have not yet been announced.

Smith feared he would be rejected as being under weight. This fear was increased when two other firemen were dismissed from the department for that cause.

Weight Right at Examination.
When Smith took the examination, about two weeks ago, he weighed 145 pounds, the exact specified weight for a man of his height. Since then he had a slight attack of ptomaine poisoning and he feared this had reduced his weight to such an extent that he would be rejected.

Before joining the fire department Smith had earned only a small and irregular income as a life insurance collector. Mrs. Smith said, and he was in debt. When creditors learned he had joined the fire department, collectors "swooped down on him," Mrs. Smith said, and he frequently told her the burden of his debts was almost too great to bear. He had been counting on his promotion and salary raise to end his financial troubles.

At the engine house today it was said Smith always seemed cheerful there and never complained of having any worries.

MAN SHOT WHEN PISTOL WAS PLAYFULLY FLOURISHED, DIES
Police Ordered to Re-arrest Joseph Weinglass Who Caused Death of Aaron Winder.

An order to re-arrest Joseph Weinglass of 1011 North Sixteenth street was issued by the police today, following the death at the city hospital of Aaron Winder, who was shot by Weinglass in Sam Bockman's poolroom, 1501 Wash street, last Saturday night.

At the time of the shooting Weinglass and several others were arrested. They said the shooting was accidental. After an investigation the Circuit Attorney's office ordered the police to release them.

Weinglass said he was playfully flourishing Bockman's revolver when it was accidentally discharged. He will be held as an inquest witness.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Edwin H. Farnham, a restaurant owner, was held by the police today, pending investigation into the death of Mrs. Mary Franklin, a widow, to whom, the police say, Farnham was engaged to be married.

The woman was found dead in her parlor, where there were two knife wounds in her neck, none of them could have caused death, physicians said. The police found several strands of short hair, apparently that of a man, clutched tightly in the woman's right hand.

Farnham told the police he thought the woman had killed herself.

War May Delay Distribution of American Property.

Many of the heirs are fighting in the French trenches; others are wounded prisoners in German hospitals, widows whose husbands and sons have fallen before the guns and "war babies" who need the food their inheritance would buy, must suffer.

Pieters was 50 years old. He had lived as a hermit in the log cabin on his farm. He had at one time 300 cattle and 1000 horses. He came of Belgian peasant stock.

RACE SEGREGATION ORDINANCE TO BE DECIDED BY BALLOT

Petition Initiating One Measure Bears More Than Enough Bona Fide Names.

The election Board ruled yesterday that, bearing 15,485 bona fide names, the initiative petition for a segregation ordinance were sufficient to require its submission at a special election before February 17, 1916.

The ordinance provides that in blocks now occupied entirely by either whites or negroes, the opposite race shall not be permitted to assume residence, and that city blocks in which both races now reside shall remain open to either white or negro residents.

This ordinance is patterned after a municipal law at Baltimore which has been tested and upheld as constitutional by the Court of Appeals, the highest tribunal of Maryland.

Second Petition Being Checked.
A second segregation ordinance, accompanied by an identical list of initiative petitioners, patterned after a Louisville, Ky., ordinance, probably will be submitted at the same special election. It provides that in blocks wherein 50 per cent of the dwellings are occupied at date of passage by either whites or negroes, the opposite race shall not be permitted to assume residence. The Election Board is now checking the petition new charter providing this ordinance.

Voters will have an opportunity of voting separately on the measures, each of which may stand if adopted irrespective of the fate of the other. A committee of five citizens, representing the petitioners, favors the adoption of both measures by the public, as a complete program of segregation.

Property Rights Question.
The Louisville ordinance was enacted in May 1914, and was upheld by the Kentucky Supreme Court the same year. The Baltimore ordinance was enacted in 1912, and superseded an act of 1911, which the Maryland court declared unconstitutional on the ground that it attempted to deprive property owners of vested rights acquired prior to the date of enactment. The newer ordinance corrected this defect as suggested by the court, by limiting application to those who attempted to acquire residence in restricted blocks after the enactment of the ordinance.

The ordinances pending here aim only to regulate the residence of whites and negroes, and in no wise restrict the right of either race to buy property in any city block.

Wayne E. Wheeling, an attorney, a member of the initiative committee of five, said the petitioners were advised that both ordinances were constitutional and conform to the decisions of the Maryland and Kentucky courts, by depriving no one of a vested right.

Exclude Churches and Schools.
In addition to restricting residence by both races, the ordinances prohibit the use of buildings on the same conditions, for churches, schools, theaters, dance halls or other kinds of public assemblies.

Wheeling said segregation acts in Norfolk and Richmond, Va., have been upheld by the lower courts and are undergoing a test before the Supreme Court of Virginia at present.

The ordinances will be introduced in the Board of Aldermen Sept. 27, when it convenes in regular session, and must be passed by that body within 60 days, or it will become the function of the Election Board to then fix its date of election within 90 days, at which the public may vote on the two propositions. The petitioners had to bear 10,722 signatures, or 7 per cent of the registered vote at the last majority election, to force submission at a special election.

Police Reject Alleged Flannery's Opinion That She Killed Self, and Hold Him for Inquiry.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Edwin H. Farnham, a restaurant owner, was held by the police today, pending investigation into the death of Mrs. Mary Franklin, a widow, to whom, the police say, Farnham was engaged to be married.

LAST LEGAL MOVE IS MADE TO SAVE CHARLES BECKER

New Trial Asked; State Ordered to Show Cause Why He Should Not Have One.

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 24.—Charles Becker's hope of escaping execution for the murder of Herman Rosenthal was based today upon his application for a new trial. Supreme Court Justice Philbin has granted an order requiring the State to show why the appeal should not be granted. The order is returnable before Justice Ford on Monday, when arguments will be heard and witnesses may testify.

W. Bourke Cockran, counsel for Becker, was busy today in the preparation of subpoenas for the witnesses which had made affidavits comprising the new evidence which formed the basis for the request for new trial.

The Court's order for the State to show cause does not act as a stay of Becker's execution. If the Court grants a new trial, the stay will be given automatically. Cockran said that this was the last legal move that could be made in Becker's behalf.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Cost of Wash Day.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I read with interest your splendid editorial of today headed "Abolishing Washday." Your statement that the consequences, social and economic, will be momentous if this goes through, is more than true.

For a long time I have been having all my family laundry done by the power laundries in St. Louis, and for one, I never expect to have it done at home again.

Naturally I am glad to hear of any movement on the part of the laundries to reduce the cost of finished family wash, but I dare say there are few housewives who really know the actual cost of having this work done in the home.

I think that, in the home cost of the charges made by the laundry, that they think only of what they pay the laundress and forget to add the many incidentals, such as meals, soap, heating, gas and electricity, to say nothing about sewing machines, washboards, wringers, boilers, kettles, etc. After these are added, you will find the cost is about the same as the laundries charge and then there is usually something left over to iron yourself.

But, still, after all, the greatest blessing of all is to be rid of the annoyance, responsibility and muss which you have comically depicted, but which rings with truth.

However, I think it would be a good thing for the Health Department to have some rules and regulations pertaining to the sanitation of laundries, as I notice in our city a great many little one-room laundries which, judging from their appearance, are not sanitary.

A ST. LOUISIAN.

Mirrors at Dangerous Crossings.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
An item in today's Post-Dispatch relates how a large mirror is used to advantage in warning automobiles and other vehicles of approaching vehicles from the opposite direction at a bad curve in Pittsburg. This ought to be an inspiration to St. Louisians.

Should city officials have arranged mirrors at every corner in the city, in such a way that a vehicle approaching a certain corner could tell in advance, while yet many feet away from the corner, whether or not a vehicle was approaching the corner at a right angle, the number of automobile accidents which are occurring now would be lessened.

This would be a great advantage to the street cars, as the motorman could readily see by use of mirrors at vehicle approaching at a right angle in ample time to slacken the speed of the car.

What Webster Groves Might Do.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In your recent editorial—"Invitation to Webster Groves"—you suggest, as it seems to me, the only plan by which that suburb might be brought to consent to consolidation with St. Louis. Some scheme, according to her scheme of self-government, under something like the borough system, as would enable her to hold secure those distinctive conditions which she values beyond price, might have favorable consideration. As an independent municipality, she has freedom from the saloon and its influence, Sabbath day from commercialism and excitement, and an upright government at one with the people in the execution of their wishes. It is not alone temperance sentiment or Christian regard for the Sabbath that moves her. It is practical results of such beneficence that the whole community, regardless of creed, would untiringly reject any proposition that threatened them. For example, and to illustrate what "good order" means in Webster Groves: Our ladies freely traverse the streets at night, unattended, unafraid and unmolested; our jail stands mostly empty of offenders; our Sabbath is quiet and peaceful. We are convinced that such conditions would not continue a month after the opening of a saloon on Lockwood avenue and the administration of our affairs by a body of home-controlled legislators. We would not be afraid to have Director Talbot manage our streets, or Commissioner McPherson direct our police. We would have confidence in such a nonpartisan Board of Education as during the past 10 years has won nation-wide fame for efficiency for the St. Louis schools; we regret to see that recently the political bees has gotten in his work, and note how promptly the inevitable results have followed.

We are deeply content with our state of independence. We might part with some share of it to help maintain the high standing of St. Louis, in which most of us are practically and sentimentally interested. But we will not give a moment's consideration to any scheme that menaces the peace and happiness of our homes.

St. Louis would do well to arrange her common sense along these lines.

AN ULTIMATUM OF REASON.

The strength of our note to Germany lies in the statement of fundamental principles, just rights and humane rules, which will stand for all time and for all nations under similar conditions. It is a declaration of principles that no civilized nation can deny without abandoning civilization and that will be embodied and enforced in law, regardless of the passing folly of war-crazed belligerents.

The merit of the note is its clarity, brevity, force and comprehensive finality. It is a substantial ultimatum, couched in friendly and courteous language. It is an ultimatum of reason.

It is impossible to mistake the position of the United States or the consequences of persistent violation of our rights in accord with recognized principle and under the law.

We not only state the principle and the law, but buttress the statement with Germany's own admission of the principle and the law.

We define and condemn Germany's illegal acts and practices and supplement the definition with Germany's admission of their illegality.

After defining and defending our neutral rights and defining and condemning Germany's wrongful acts, with inexorable logic, the President tells the German Government precisely where we stand and what we demand on these vital points:

1. The Lusitania:
In view of the admission of illegality made by the Imperial German Government when it pleaded the right of retaliation in defense of its acts, and in view of the manifest possibility of conforming to the established rules of naval warfare, the Government of the United States cannot believe that the Imperial Government will longer refrain from observing the war-torn act of its naval commander in sinking the Lusitania or from offering reparation for the American lives lost, so far as a reparation can be made for a needless destruction of human life by an illegal act.

2. The freedom of the seas:
The Government of the United States and the Imperial German Government, at are contending for the same great object, have long stood together in urging the very principles upon which the Government of the United States now so solemnly insists. They are both contending for the freedom of the seas. The Government of the United States will continue to contend for that freedom from whatever quarter violated, without compromise, and at any cost.

3. The designation of certain vessels under pre-arranged conditions for the safe transportation of Americans:
The Government of the United States, while not indifferent to the friendly spirit in which it is made, cannot accept the suggestion of the Imperial German Government that certain vessels be designated and agreed upon which shall be free on the seas now illegally proscribed. The very agreement would, by implication, subject other vessels to illegal attack and would be a curtailment and therefore an abandonment of the principles for which this Government contends and which in times of calmer counsel every nation would concede as of course.

The note ends with this unmistakable warning:

Friendship itself prompts it to say to the Imperial Government that repetition by the commanders of German naval vessels of facts in contravention of those rights must be regarded by the Government of the United States, when they affect American citizens as deliberately unfriendly.

We stand now not only as "men who know their rights, and, knowing, dare defend them," but as men who have made known their rights and their intention to defend them.

This is the wise and safe course—the course which avoids misunderstandings and their direful consequences.

We have not wronged nor injured Germany. We have merely protested against wrongs and injuries that Germany has wrought upon us and insist that she repair these wrongs and hereafter respect our sovereignty and rights. The consequences of refusing to do this will rest upon the German Government. Our hands are stainless.

The President has erected a standard to which all Americans will rally. He has framed a declaration of principles and rights which all Americans will support "at any cost."

Those in this country who think more of the interests of Germany or any other nation than of American rights and American lives are not Americans.

Would the First Congressional District prefer to elect "Dear Kitty" herself to Congress?

THE NEW PAROLE BOARD.

With the organization of the new Board of Pardon and Probation, when the ordinance creating it takes effect Sunday, St. Louis will enter, it is to be hoped, upon a system of reforming delinquent adults better than anything tried up to this time. This will be because the new organization will have power to inquire into all cases brought before the city courts, and recommend paroles. It will also have access to the Workhouse, or any of the city penal institutions, with the view of discovering worthy cases for the exercise of the parole power. And, under the ordinance, the Superintendent of the Workhouse, who is made a member of the Board, will be empowered to employ any paroled person at wages of $1 a day over his maintenance, to be paid him in cash.

The parole system is an American institution. Great Britain has the ticket-of-leave, but it is only given to convicts who have served two-thirds of their sentences. Our parole system puts a man on his honor, and by means of holding a sentence over him impresses upon him that "honor pays." But its great merit is that he does not actually become a convict. He is snatched from the door of the penitentiary before entry. He is given the strongest inducement to reform.

The new Parole Board will have an opportunity to decrease the crime rate and cost of the State.

house, jail and penitentiary and save many citizens to St. Louis.

THE THREAT TO BURN WARSAW.

No one need be at all surprised if the reported Russian threat to burn Warsaw, in the event that it cannot be held against the Germans, shall be carried into effect. The Russians burned Moscow, to turn Napoleon back, although it was the ancient capital and wholly Russian.

Warsaw is only Russian from a governmental and political standpoint. It was the capital of Poland, and its population even now is over 75 per cent Polish. Of the rest, 15½ per cent are Jews. And about 8 per cent are Germans. Its population is about as great as that of St. Louis.

As between Moscow and Warsaw, it would appear that Russia would have very little hesitation about committing the Polish city to the flames, if by doing so she could checkmate Von Mackensen and Von Hindenburg.

Evidently that Prussian holl did need Lansing.

THE TOWN PICNIC.

Today St. Louis is provincially and beautifully picknicking. Ordinarily this would insure rain, and there is no surprise at the Weather Man's prediction that Jupiter Pluvius will be among those present at the festivities.

Rain or shine, the picnic is a success, a great getting-together of the neighbors, a splendid rehabilitation of the pioneer community life when the inhabitants as one family gathered on the village green for sports and merry-making.

We have a little outgrown the primitive simplicity requisite to the ideal picnic, but the vital principle survives in today's elaborate metropolitan outing. Getting together for the purposes of recreation—touching elbows with the neighbors—increases fellow-citizenship. Fellow-citizenship, or fellowship in municipal purposes is the one greatest need of St. Louis as of every great city.

John Wanamaker suggests that we pay Germany $100,000,000 for Belgium. How could he keep the sale contract from becoming "a scrap of paper?" With a hundred billion German war chest there would certainly be another Military Necessity.

OUR REBATING BREAD TRUST.

The so-called Bread Trust is a rebater. The minutes of its directors' meetings record considerable rebates in cash and in "gifts" of show-cases, mirrors and signs to favored customers.

There can be no literal monopoly in bread, so long as flour can be freely obtained in the open market; but a virtual monopoly in the baking business, and a fraud on the consumer, can conceivably be achieved through the essentially vicious and contemptible practice of rebating.

Rebating is an underhand or sleight-of-hand performance at best. It secretly gives back what has been openly paid. Its purpose is deception or to obtain favor independent of the value of the goods sold, or both. It is a corrupter of honesty in trade—a bribe.

Used by a combine as a means of undue advantage or a weapon against honest competition, it is doubly reprehensible. It has been one of the crookedest and cruellest weapons of the big trusts, and law has so branded it.

Our local Bread Trust is a little and incomplete one, but it evidently has the bad habits and vicious practices of the larger offenders. Its weapon of the rebate will likely prove a boom-erang, the instrument of its own punishment.

If phone girls are to be limited to six-hour workdays, how many of them in succession will the subscriber have to parley with to get the number he is calling?

SYNDICATING OLD JOE SMITH.

In the otherwise barren region of Idaho we perceive flourishing prosperity in the industries of highway robbery, wholesale stage-coach holdups, kidnapping, holding for ransom and kindred lines. Easy money conditions have encouraged some ambitious promotions, among which is a financial plan to kidnap Joseph Smith, head of the Mormon Church, and hold his sacred person for $100,000 ransom.

While ordinarily it pays to advertise, in this instance publicity seems to have yielded poor returns. It involved too much correspondence, some of which got into the hands of Federal authorities, who pronounce the plan illegitimate. We suppose they are technically correct. In any event, they have destroyed confidence in the plan, and until confidence returns the promoters are at a standstill. This is especially true of one of them who has been temporarily confined in a Federal preserve awaiting the grand jury's action.

So that the question of how much Joseph would bring must remain a question for those interested in values. His biblical precursor was sold by a syndicate of his brethren to the Ishmeelites for 20 pieces of silver. For our part, we wouldn't underwrite the modern prophet to the extent of 30 pieces of copper.

The moral values of the case alone concern us. That it should be considered moral by the Federal authorities to prevent the removal of the head of the Mormon herd to the unpeopled portions of barren oblivion is an incongruity to confound metaphysicians and bring us to apostrophe. We can see how it would be moral to interdict immoral traffic in Joseph Smith and prevent his friends from buying him back from the road agents. Pursuing the anomaly finally to its lair, we perceive that the "morality" of the Federal authorities in protecting old Joe Smith is ultimately predicated on the well-known constitutional guaranty of religious freedom. If the Constitution is going to be so broad that it will cover the freedom of Mormonism, what can be said of the Constitution's own morals?

AN AUTO PARADE.

"Shall we have an automobile parade in St. Louis?" asks the Motor Digest.

Why not? The auto parade, with decorated cars, is a charming feature of the festival season in a number of cities. No doubt, as the Motor Digest says, many car owners and car dealers would be glad to decorate cars for a pageant in the spring or autumn. V. P. week is a good time. Its success depends wholly upon the owners of cars.

The Automobile Club is a good rallying organization to suggest the parade.

Hartwell has been swinging from a long rope down the side of the standpipe all day long and he is making rapid progress putting on the coat of black. Hartwell told Uncle Ike Rogers that fishing would be fine in the standpipe; that he saw a number of large fish swimming around in there. How they got in there is a question that might well be put up to the Whittling Club. Did the fish grow in there, or were they dropped from the clouds—Warrensburg (Mo.) Star.

ON THE BREAD WAGON.

"WHAT are the bangles blowin' for?" said Scales-on-Behind.

"They've found us out, they've found us out," the Wagon Driver whined.

"What makes you look so white, so white?" said Scales-on-Behind.

"I'm dreadin' what we've got to face," the Wagon Driver whined.

"For we've been investigated, And the cat, they say, is out; It's give the bloomin' people things To josh the trade about; You can't go past a crowd no more But what they laugh and shout, And they're layin' for the bread man In the mornin'."

"WHAT'S been so wrong about it all?" said Scales-on-Behind.

"Why, nothin' very much, it seems," the Wagon Driver whined.

"Will anybody go to jail?" said Scales-on-Behind.

"I don't think so, from what I read," the Wagon Driver whined.

"It's only what's amusin' In the seven salsmen fakes; The show of competition, And the claims for what they bake, When the single truck requirement Covers ev'ry pie and cake; An' they're layin' for the bread man In the mornin'."

"WHAT'S all the crowd before the door?" said Scales-on-Behind.

"That's where the thing is comin' out," the Wagon Driver whined.

"What's ev'rybody laughin' at?" said Scales-on-Behind.

"Why, our side's tryin' to explain," the Wagon Driver whined.

"A couple of New Yorkers Fixed it up an' fixed it fine; We don't know how they done it, But they made the thing a mine; They say we make a million Ev'ry time the people dine; An' they're layin' for the Bread Man In the mornin'."

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

BEAUTY CULTURE.
ROBERT F. Fennell of Chicago and glycerin in equal parts constitute a soothing lotion for the removal of sunburn, and will not injure the skin. Lemon on juice diluted with glycerin or rose-water is also good for sunburn. The results, both remedies tend to whiten the skin.

APPRECIATIVE READER.—Never overeat. Exercise every muscle in pure air. To get clear complexion, one writer says: "Take olive oil, live on it, live in it, live with it, drink it, dress your food with it, lubricate your system with it." Another: "Oranges and green salads, with oil. Onions, asparagus and oil and all spring vegetables are recommended. Avoid cooked greases and pastry, and eat with moderation." Another: "My mother had a beautiful complexion, which she acquired by sleeping on a low, hard pillow. When a child she also made me sleep on the same kind. It is the best possible preventive of wrinkles, for, unlike the feather pillow, it keeps the skin of the face from being pushed forward and wrinkling up by burrowing one's head in feathers, that is sure to happen." Another: "The English beauties have a clear, lovely skin because they eat so little fruit at the table. Fruit is hard to obtain, and it is much better taken in this way, and it does not upset the stomach. The English women live on very much the same viands as Irish women, and the warm breads and the good, sweet butter of Ireland. They take the nice and well-cooked potatoes that are eaten in Dublin, and they understand how to cook their vegetables until they are thoroughly done." (Fig and senna published June 25.)

HEALTH HINTS.

CONSTIPATED.—Eat as many bran flakes as you can without inconvenience. To make them: ½ cup bran and same quantity of whole wheat flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, pinch each, 3 tablespoons shortening and milk to make sufficiently soft. Mix in same way as any baking powder biscuits. Roll or drop by the spoonful in a floured pan and bake in hot oven for 15 minutes.

CLARA.—First symptoms consumption: Dull pains about collar bones, tightness chest, sometimes dry, hacking cough, not very severe in morning and late at night. Headache, nervousness, dryness of throat, etc. are present. Pulse increases permanently. Gradual loss of weight should make suspicious and should cause to seek best medical advice. Examination of sputum. This is essentially the case if, in addition to loss of weight, there is a loss of appetite and increased frequency of heart beat, afternoon fever and morning cough. Do not try to think you have tuberculosis, see physician at once. If too poor to pay, get examination and treatment free at a dispensary.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

A. G.—Some fumigants done with sulphur of carbon, several times, to get rid of the worms that appear in flour. A housewife says: The worms can't be all the way through the flour. Most of them will be on top. Take off the top layer of flour and bake in the oven long enough to kill both the worms and eggs. Sift out the worms and put away to use. Keep it out of pantry until you are rid of flies. You will have worms in something from the flour. I believe the flies have laid eggs in the flour to hatch out later as worms.

A. V. K.—Polished bran mash for crickets is made by mixing 1 pound bran and 1 ounce Paris green in pan. Three ounces syrup and a quarter of an orange, including the peel, are added to ½ pint water. The bran is mixed with this mixture. Small amounts of the damp mash should be put in shallow pan or dish and baked in the oven or under heavy pieces of furniture or in other places frequented by crickets. The mash should be changed daily in the evening. Another bait may be made of uncooked vegetable such as carrots and potatoes, chopped up and poisoned with arsenic or Paris green. In using poisoned bait, be careful not to let the crickets be exercised, particularly if there are children about the place.

LAW.

FRANK.—Try writing Recorder of Deeds, Los Angeles.

BRANDER.—No permit necessary for lawn party on your own ground.

EDNA M.—See the Circuit Court Clerk as to whether court costs have been paid.

LIZZIE S. F.—Your case is rather doubtful, and we don't know what a court would do. Give us the facts. You might see Prosecuting Attorney, Municipal Court Building, for advice.

H. E.—To man of family or one having someone dependent on him for support, household furniture to value of $500 is exempt; also household goods to the extent of wages, 10 per cent is exempt. Corporation stock is exempt.

MISCELLANEOUS.

FERGUSON.—Thin water color paint with water.

JENNIE.—Slaves are a European and Asiatic larkspur having racemose purple flowers. Its seeds contain delphinine, and are violently emetic and cathartic. They are locally used as a fish poison.

H. D. G.—We do not know that palm beach suits cannot be laundered the same as other wash goods. Laundrymen say they have a special process and that they keep the palms separate from the other washables.

SPORT SALAD BY L.C. DAVIS.

Ban Looks 'Em Over.

YOU saw our Brownie yesterday. You ought to see those rascals play. When they are on their stride. So, now you know just how we feel. And what we have to stand: Oh, Bee Bee Jay, it would surely pay if you gave us a helping hand.

Ah, Ha! The Alibi!
THE elusive alibi has been cornered by "Lefty" Leverage. "Smatter, Lefty, is the mound too high?"

We would now like to hear from "Lefty" Leverage. "Smatter, Lefty, is the mound too high?"

It is rumored that Clark Griffith is after Groom. Go to it, Clark.

Pete Compton, late of the Kansas City Blues and St. Louis Browns, will join the St. Louis Whites at Federal League Park today.

We stayed away from Fed Park yesterday, for the links. He made the last nine holes in 34, two strokes under par, his score for the first nine, 37, equalled.

Cards for the morning:
 Evans—Out: 443245433-37
 Standish—Out: 44246534-39
 Standish—In: 64235432-34-71
 Standish—In: 663356524-40-76

Must Be Dick Collins.
IT is reported that the Feds are planning a raid on organized ball that will swoop in such stars as Ty Cobb, Grover Alexander, Home Run Baker, Eddie Collins and Vic Salei when Landis hands down his decision. Hot stuff!

Ban Johnson has quite a capacity, but we hope he got his stomach full of protracted baseball yesterday afternoon.

Herman Laubis was fourth in the one-mile swimming race at Frisco (we say Frisco out East). There were five in the race.

Herman, who is a fresh-water duck, doesn't prosper in the briny.

Looks as though President Tener will not get a vacation this year, unless he takes it after the close of the baseball season. Johnny Evans will keep the Press busy investigating his various umbragios with the umpire and spectators and whitewashing him for the balance of the summer.

John K. yields the whitewash brush more effectively as President of the League than he did as a pitcher.

Wonder how long an ordinary ball player, without a temperance, say "Cox" Ryan, for instance, would be allowed to get away with the kind of stuff Evans is pulling.

With the lifting of the suspension on "Pants" the White Sox ought to come up.

Today Chick Evans will resume his regular occupation of winning the Western golf championship.

When "Dutch" Leonard was hit in the leg by a pitched ball yesterday Manager Ricker consented to the substitution of a runner in place of the injured member without prejudice to his standing in the game. This is an act of sportsmanship that is getting to be quite popular with baseball managers and takes us back to the days of chivalry when knighthood was in flower.

CHAMPION EVANS TWO UP ON RIVAL

Standish of Detroit Forces Western Golf Title-Holder to Play Sensationally.

CLEVELAND, O., July 24.—By a real burst of speed, "Chick" Evans finished the morning round 2 up on J. D. Standish Jr. of Detroit in the finals for the Western Golf championship.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Roy L. McCordell.

Mr. Jarr Has a New Parlor Trick! He Proves to Be Some Mind Reader.

"I WAS talking to Mrs. Rangle today," remarked Mrs. Jarr, looking up from a newspaper account of the arrest of a fake "medium," "and she firmly believes in Spiritualism; she says she has seen cabinet workers do the most wonderful things."

"I've seen cabinetmakers make chairs and tables, too," said Mr. Jarr; "there was nothing wonderful about it."

"There you go! Always making fun of everything I say!" cried Mrs. Jarr. "I do declare it's no wonder our children are saucy to me! They see their father has no respect for me; so why should they?"

"There, now," said Mr. Jarr, soothingly. "I was only joking. If Mrs. Rangle believes in Spiritualism, I'm sure I do not object, but you'll admit that the 'spirits' and 'controls' might be better employed than ringing bells and shaking tambourines in a black cloth cabinet."

"And you will admit that there is such a thing as spirit influences?" asked Mrs. Jarr.

"Oh, yes," admitted Mr. Jarr, "there is something in telepathy, just as there is something in hypnotism (and perhaps Spiritualism), but none of these things go as far as their enthusiastic devotees claim. I haven't the psychic mind," added Mr. Jarr, "but I can read people's thoughts—to a certain extent."

"You're fortunate," said Mrs. Jarr, coldly. "I wish I could do as much and read YOUR thoughts—but perhaps ignorance is bliss in this case. Perhaps I could tell you what you have been thinking or what you have been doing, but it doesn't make me unhappy."

"Not at all, not at all," said Mr. Jarr eagerly. "I can read your thoughts and tell you what you have been doing, but it doesn't make me unhappy."

"Why should it?" asked Mrs. Jarr. "I never do anything I shouldn't do. You are at liberty to tell me what I have been doing today. Let me hear you do it."

"Well," said Mr. Jarr, assuming an expression of acute mental concentration, "you went out shopping today. You were in a department store, you saw a lot of things you would like to have, but you couldn't afford to buy them, so you ordered home some things. Then you shopped in this neighborhood and bought a fanny haddle and a cauliflower. The gas man called and you paid the bill and he didn't have any change and you didn't trust him, so you sent Gertrude out for it, and she was gone a long time and it worried you, and Willie came home with his nose bleeding—and but your mind is wandering. Unless you concentrate it on what you were doing today I can tell you no further."

"Concentrated eye!" said Mrs. Jarr, "for that's about as much as you know!"

"I'm right, but you won't admit it," insisted Mr. Jarr.

"You are not right—not in one single thing!" declared Mrs. Jarr.

"How did I know all these things, then?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"You don't know them. You are only guessing," she replied. "I didn't go downtown shopping. The C. O. D. packages of tinware you saw in the hall are some things Mrs. Rangle left the money with me to pay for. She had to go to her sister's today, and, knowing the things were coming, and not being able to trust the janitor with the money at her house, and having a fuss with everybody else, she left a note on the bell for the delivery man to bring them here."

"Oh, I might have missed one thing," said Mr. Jarr, "but—"

"But you missed them all!" interrupted Mrs. Jarr. "You smell fanny haddle and cauliflower cooking for supper. But it's next door. The red stains you saw on Willie's shirt are paint stains. The gas bill on the mantel was paid the day before yesterday. The $10 Gertrude went out to change when I had to send after her by the janitor because she stood at the door of that Gus' place talking to the bartender so long (of which you were told) was for Mrs. Kittingly. Other than these mistakes, you're a wonderful mind reader."

"Maybe YOU'RE a mind reader, then?" replied Mr. Jarr, somewhat nettled. "What have I been doing?"

"You've been drinking!" said Mrs. Jarr. He hadn't, but he was afraid to deny it!

Stick to the Bathtub, Mary.
SINCE Mary went out on the beach she's been as red as blazes. And cranky! Gee, but she's a peach. Her peevishness annoys me. For Mary took a dip one day into the briny ocean; since then poor father's had to pay for lotion after lotion.

YOU see, she dalled in the sun. In suit abbreviated: While at it Mary thought it fun; she's changed her mind, she's stated. Now home's no pleasant place to be. Rebukes we get are scathing; we're hoping that hereafter she will stick to bathtub bathing.

"I learned," she replied, "that spelling is essential to a stenographer."
The boss chuckled.
"Good. Now let me hear you spell essential."
The fair girl hesitated for the fraction of a second.
"There are three ways," she replied. "Which do you prefer?"

Slogans of Success

By Hazen Conklin.

SUCCESS and baseball are two games singularly alike. When a man "muffs" an opponent is apt to score, and if he keeps "fanning" long enough he's "out."

ON the hill called Life a man has only to roll to reach the bottom, but to reach the top he has to CLIMB.

THE constructive critic helps to make things better. The destructive kind only shows what good has been accomplished.

SUCCESSFUL is the man who knows RESULTS from all the things he knows.

LUCILE THE WAITRESS

"DON'T want to brag about myself," said Lucile, the waitress, as the friendly customer took a seat at the counter in the small restaurant, "but every once in a while I attract the eye of a jay Lotharius. Would you believe it?"

"Undoubtedly you do," he replied.

"You're probably wonderin' what I'm drivin' at," she continued. "Ever notice how people love to answer questions an' give advice? Stop a man on the street an' ask him where the Main Hotel is an' the chances are he'll insist on 'akin' you to it an' seein' you safely inside the door. An' he won't be no bunco stealer, neither. There's a pride about bein' able to answer questions."

"Sure."

"Well, now I'm gettin' to the gist of my narration. An actor in one of them low-neck shirts come in here this mornin' an' orders his coffee and sinkers. Butt-in sits a country guy who looks like he's evaporatin' for lack of a chance to muse around town. Here he is an' he don't know a soul. You've met that kind. Well, he likes my looks. Are you surprised?"

"Not at all."

"Not knowin' just how to break the ice of conversation he ahems a couple of times right after his sliced peaches an' says: 'Pardon me, miss, but can you tell me where the op'ry house is at?' It's a stall to engage me in discourse. I'm about to tell him when my actor friend, Butt-in, sings out where it is."

"Thanks! says the lonesome one. An' he goes to his eggs with a bit of a frown. Butt-in dalled up the flirtation. Pretty soon, however, my admirer comes back. 'Pardon me, lady,' he says, 'but I'd like to ask you where the movies is at.' All over the town, answers Butt-in. Etiquette didn't call for me to say nothin', but I could see my admirer was peeved. It was plain to me he was goin' to ask me to go to some theater with him if Butt-in ever gave him the chance.

"The eggs over, he gets busy with his coffee. I bring him another glass of Acra Puritas. You didn't know I was up in the old Roman stuff, did you? Well, he shoots again. 'I hate to disturb you, lady,' he says, 'but can you tell me where a show called 'A Fool House' is playin' at?' Orpheum Theater, I sing out quick. Butt-in is provoked. I had beat him to it. 'It's 'Fool,' not 'Fool,' he says."

"Who made you the information desk of this chaw-chew station? If the gentleman cares to ask me a question I'll answer it in my own girlish way, without no out-ins from you." It silenced him for a minute. Continued to the country guest, I says: "I ain't seen that show yet, I'd love to."

"I'll take you to see it tonight," sings out Butt-in.

"Well, kid, that crabbid it. Naturally I wouldn't go with Butt-in, so I had to say: 'I have an engagement for this evening!' Who with—that old chaffer who beats up all your other gentlemen friends? says Butt-in.

"The rural one pays attention; looks nervous an' then folds up his napkin, like the Turks do to their tents in the night, an' quietly steals away. I was furious. I turns to Butt-in.

"Say, I says, 'why don't you learn some brains? I'll bet the inside of your cranium is as barren as the Desert of Sarah durin' a drought.'"

"He certainly was guilty of a faux pas," said the friendly customer.

"Forepaugh!" came from Lucile.

"Say, he was guilty of a Barnum & Bailey, a Ringling Brothers an' all the rest, if that's the synonym of speech you want to use. Well, kid, let's forget it. You goin' to try to bite your initials in another piece of that apple pie, so-called, today?"

Bill Cooley's Still Hunt for Nell

BILL COOLEY, 65 and gray, sat in his little store at Hunter's Point when Jep McKay came hobbling through the door. "I see the paper says 'East Lynne' is to be here soon," says he. "You'll take it in, I reckon, Bill. It's one you always see."

Bill Cooley lived all by himself; he'd never had a wife. Nobody knew who he preferred to live a bachelor's life. In fact, concerning Bill's affairs, they hadn't been let in. But everyone in town knew Bill had never missed "East Lynne."

"Yep, I'll be there," Bill said to Jep. And when the curtain rose, Bill had a seat that cost four-bits; he wore his Sunday clothes. He saw it through from first to last, without a smile or tear. His manner was a puzzle to the people sitting near.

"I seen you at the 'how last night,'" Jep said to Bill next day. "You acted like you didn't take no interest in the play. What makes you go an' see it, Bill, each time it comes along? You set there like a stick, old boy; there must be somethin' wrong."

Bill Cooley says: "I'll tell you, Jep—I guess I might as well. When I was 21 I knowed a girl; we'll call her Nell. We two had fixed it up to have the parson make us one. I say we'd sized it up; well, Jep, that's all we ever done. 'East Lynne' come in to play the town—there ain't much more to tell. An actor by the name of Gray was introduced to Nell. Next day I got a note from her—a goodbye note, you know. It said this Gray had promised her to put her in the show."

"I've never seen her since," says Bill, a tear drop in each eye. "But still I've always sort o' hoped that she'd be comin' by. 'East Lynne' a play I'll always see, an' now you know what for." And then Bill Cooley started to commenting on the war.
